

United Nations to Probe U.K. Spying on Climate Summit After Snowden Revelations

United Nations, November 11 (RHC)-- United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon says he will launch a probe into reports that Britain spied on fellow governments at global climate summits in 2009 and 2010.

A document released by National Security Agency whistleblower Edward Snowden revealed a spy from the British intelligence agency GCHQ embedded with the British climate delegation.

The news comes as negotiators meet in Venezuela ahead of the climate summit in Lima, Peru, next month. Last year, documents from Snowden showed the NSA spied on foreign governments before and during the 2009 U.N. climate summit in Copenhagen.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/38971-united-nations-to-probe-uk-spying-on-climate-summit-after-snowden-revelations>

Radio Habana Cuba