

Republican-Controlled House of Representatives Votes to Repeal Obama Administration Immigration Protections

Washington, January 15 (RHC)-- The Republican-controlled House of Representatives has voted to undo major portions of President Obama's executive action on immigration.

The measure would strip the legal protections offered to millions of undocumented immigrants in the United States as part of a reprieve granted last year.

More than two dozen Republicans broke with their party to oppose the measure. President Obama has promised a veto if the legislation reaches his desk.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/43643-republican-controlled-house-of-representatives-votes-to-repeal-obama-administration-immigration-protections>

Radio Habana Cuba