

Pedagogía 2015 Continues with Panels, Symposiums on Educational Process

Havana, January 29 (PL-RHC)-- Panels, symposiums and sessions of debates, spaces for participants to display their papers and the most diverse experiences in the educational process, take place Thursday in the International Congress "Pedagogía 2015."

Nearly 3,000 participants are attending this event in the more than 20 halls of the capital's Conference Center. Many papers from Venezuela, Ecuador and Bolivia to discuss issues related to the training of values, nationality and cultural identity are being discussed.

Venezuela, with 600 teachers, is the most numerous delegation attending Pedagogía 2015. Venezuelan Deputy Education Minister Rodolfo Perez told Prensa Latina that those delegates came after participating in pedagogical congresses of that nation.

Pedagogía 2015 will close tomorrow, Friday, after five days of debates, in which participants exchange experiences and update advances within the educational sector.
