

Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro Praises Cuban Collaboration

Caracas, February 9 (RHC) -- Venezuelan President Nicolas Maduro highlighted the role of Cuban workers in his country, particularly those in the field of healthcare.

While launching a social program for Venezuelan families at the presidential palace of Miraflores, Maduro thanked Cuban workers and sent greetings to Cuban Revolution leader Fidel Castro, as well as President Raul Castro.

The new social program aims to help Venezuelan families in extreme poverty, and it includes a national survey of 1,500 poor communities regarding social protection programs offering food, education, culture, sports and health services.
