

ISIS Releases Personal Info, Threatens U.S. Marines

Washington, March 24 (RHC)-- The self-proclaimed Islamic State has published the names and addresses of dozens of people whom it claims are U.S. Marines and that it wants supporters to kill.

An Islamic State hacker group says it stole the personal information from government services, but U.S. officials say it was publicly available.

The Marine Corps has advised its forces and their families to be diligent in protecting their privacy online.
