

India's Soaring Temperatures Leave 1,800 People Dead

New Delhi, May 29 (Euronews) -- More than 1,800 people have died in India's heatwave in just one week. Most of the deaths have occurred in central and southern areas where temperatures have soared to nearly 47 degrees Celsius melting some roads.

Authorities have advised people to stay out of the sun, cover their heads and drink plenty of water but poverty forces many to work despite the risks.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/internacionales/57656-indias-soaring-temperatures-leave-1800-people-dead>

Radio Habana Cuba