

Atlanta Business Owners Examine Opportunities in Cuba

Havana, June 29 (RHC) -- A group of Atlanta business owners have traveled to Havana to see what business opportunities the new dynamic in the relations between the U.S. and Cuba might provide, WSB-TV reports.

The business delegation includes people in the construction industry, like May Allen of Atlanta Rod and Manufacturing, who already has identified some possibilities for growth in this new market.

Charles Shapiro, president of the World Affairs Council of Atlanta, says Allen and other business owners are perfectly positioned should Congress lift economic sanctions on Havana.
