

Russia vows to help Greece overcome financial woes

Moscow, July 6, (RHC), – Russian President Vladimir Putin has assured Greeks that he will support them in the financial hardships they face after the Greek people overwhelmingly voted "No" to further restricting terms of an international bailout program.

In a phone conversation on Monday, Putin discussed the results of a Sunday referendum with Greek Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras, voicing his support for the Greek people in “overcoming the difficulties” they face, a statement by the Kremlin press service said.
