

Cuban Parliamentarian Supports Strengthening Russia-Cuba Cooperation

Moscow, July 8 (RHC) -- Cuban parliamentarian and director of the National Center for Sexual Education, Mariela Castro Espin, called on Tuesday for strengthening cooperation between Cuba and Russia on health, during a meeting with Russian senators.

Castro Espin said that the implementation of a joint project for the use and production of the Cuban drugs, such as Heberprot P, could translate into reduced treatment costs for Russia.

Castro Espin reiterated that Cuba and Russia are united by historical ties of friendship, so that the joint implementation of the health program would be a new opportunity to strengthen them.
