

Cuba to Host Congress on Sexual Health and Education

Havana, August 26 (HC)-- Cuba will expose its most significant achievements in the area of sexual health and education during the 7th Cuban Congress on those subjects to take place September 14th to the 18th at Havana's International Convention Center.

According to the National Sexual Education Center (CENESEX), the forum will focus on public policies, comprehensive education and promotion of sexual health and rights, as well as social communications.

CENESEX Director Mariela Castro Espin recently said that the Congress is expected to contribute to the debate and collective focus on the process of integral education about sexuality and sexual health.

Renowned Cuban and foreign experts will participate at the forum, which will promote the creation and strengthening of alliances among countries and regions.
