

FBI Probes Deputies' Shooting of Texas Man Who Had Hands Raised

Dallas, September 3 (RHC)-- In the U.S. state of Texas, the FBI has opened a civil rights investigation into the fatal shooting by sheriff's deputies of a man who appeared to have his hands in the air.

Gilbert Flores was shot by Bexar County sheriff's deputies responding to a report of domestic violence. The full version of a bystander's video released by a local ABC station appears to show deputies opening fire after Gilbert raised his hands; Gilbert's left hand is obscured by a utility pole, but his right hand is in the air.
