

Cuba and the United States Discuss Civil Aviation

Havana, October 1 (RHC)-- Government delegations from Cuba and the United States held technical talks in Havana regarding civil aviation, with a view to establishing regular flights between the two countries.

The meeting took place in a respectful, professional and constructive atmosphere, in which the two sides discussed issues related to air transport and safety, among other issues of mutual interest.

The technical level talks are part of a new stage of relations between Havana and Washington, after the restoration of diplomatic ties last July 20th.
