Cuba Triumph in Doha: Full List of World 2015 Amateur Champions

The 2015 World Boxing Championships ended in Doha, Qatar with 4 golds for Cuba, 2 for Russia and one apiece for Azerbaijan, France, Ireland and Morocco, with the latter two making history with their first ever AIBA World golds.

Cuban flyweight Yosbany Veitia and European Games Champion Elvin Mamishzada displayed similar game-plans early on in the fight, but it was the Azeri who's patient tactics paid off. Veitia was left chasing the match, and Mamishzada chose his moments well to precision counter and take the title.

Defending World Champion Lazaro Alvarez started cautiously against unbeaten Azeri Albert Selimov. With the Selimov struggling to get close enough to the Cuban to threaten, he was cut at the end of the second round, leaving the referee no choice but to award a technical knockout - and deserved third World Championship gold - to Alvarez.

Irish light heavyweight Joe Ward presented Julio la Cruz with the biggest test of his Doha campaign so far, but the AIBA Boxer of the Year looked focused on a third successive world title. After the Cuban captain took the first two rounds, Ward's late rally wasn't enough, and la Cruz, with his champion material throughout the tournament, retained the gold in style.
