

El Salvador Says U.S. Blockade of Cuba is Unjust and Useless

United Nations, October 23 (RHC)-- El Salvador's ambassador to the United Nations, Ruben Zamora, says that the economic, commercial and financial blockade imposed by the United States against Cuba for over half a century, must come to an end because it is a unfair and useless measure.

In statements to Prensa Latina news agency in New York, the Salvadoran diplomat argued that Washington's siege only serves the interests of small groups from the United States, bent on keeping a distance between the two countries.

Zamora said that his country would support the draft resolution to be presented by Cuba on Tuesday, October 27th, at the UN General Assembly on the need to end the arbitrary measure.

He also considered that the resumption of ties between Havana and Washington is a positive decision that deserves the support of the international community.
