

Cuba and Saudi Arabia to Strengthen Health Cooperation

Riyadh, November 16 (RHC)-- Representatives of Cuba and Saudi Arabia expressed their interest in consolidating bilateral cooperation in the health sector.

Saudi Health Minister Khalid bin Abdulaziz Al-Falij and Cuban ambassador Enrique Enríquez, reviewed the current state of bilateral ties in the area.

The two sides agreed to review the possibility of implementing a joint comprehensive health care program to benefit people with diabetic foot ulcers in the Arab country, where more than three million people suffer from diabetes.

During the exchange, Minister Al-Falij praised Cuba's achievements in the field of health care and ratified his country's interest in further strengthening cooperation links in the scientific and bio-pharmaceutical sectors.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/en/noticias/nacionales/76042-cuba-and-saudi-arabia-to-strengthen-health-cooperation>

Radio Habana Cuba