

FARC Calls on Colombian Government to Stop Stalling Peace Talks

"I have never agreed with deadlines, they can be fatal, they're dangerous, especially when they are imposed on the guerrilla side," Timochenko stressed in his letter that the guerrilla army remains firmly committed to the peace process. "By making the current obstacles known we expect the national government will take steps to overcome them. As an indication of its will to end the conflict, since the signing ceremony took place in Havana, the guerrilla army has agreed to a ceasefire."
