

Cuban Civil Society Demands Internationally Binding Agreement of Climate

Paris, December 3 (RHC)-- Cuban civil society has demanded that world leaders, gathered in Paris for the UN Climate Change Summit, agree on an internationally binding agreement on environmental protection.

Representatives of Cuban civil organizations, on hand at the summit in France, said the issue is of utmost importance to secure the survival of our species on the planet.

Among those who are attending the UN climate talks include officials with the Cuban Association of the United Nations (ACNU), the Animal Production Association and the Antonio Núñez Jiménez Foundation for Nature and Humanity.
