

International Conference on José Martí Continues in Havana

Havana, January 27 (RHC) -- The Second International Conference "With All and for the Good of All" has entered its third day of sessions with delegates from 50 countries discussing the main problems and challenges of today's world.

On Wednesday, the more than 700 participants, gathered in work commissions and panel discussions, debated the influence of José Martí on Cuban Revolution leader Fidel Castro, and on revolutionary processes in our region and around the world.

A youth Forum was also held on the universality of José Martí's thought, particularly his idea of building a better world with justice, equity and equal opportunities for all.
