

U.S. Sends 5,000 Tons of Ammunition to Germany

Berlin, February 23 (RHC)-- The United States has sent more than 5,000 tons of ammunition to its army depot in Germany, a move aimed at increasing military activities in Europe. The cargo, the largest single Europe-bound shipment in more than a decade, was sent to the American depot in Miesau, the U.S. Army's largest munitions store outside the United States.

Russia has accused the Western powers of fighting "a new Cold War" after Moscow came under pressure from the US and NATO over its policy towards Syria and Ukraine.
