

Activists Protest British Firm Over Profiting from Israeli War Crimes

London, April 11 (RHC)-- Scores of pro-Palestinian activists in the UK have demonstrated outside the headquarters of an arms manufacturing company, accusing it of benefiting from Israel's deadly crackdown against Palestinians.

The protesters gathered in front of the UK headquarters of aerospace manufacturer Thales, in Croly, and expressed their anger against the company's partnership with Israel's Elbit Systems to develop a surveillance drone, nicknamed Watchkeeper, used by the regime against Palestinians.

The rally was held by the Sussex Stop Arming Israel campaign and was supported by other human rights groups. The main messages of the protest were "Stop Arming Israel" and "Thales profits from Israeli war crimes."
