

Washington and London Pledge Troops in NATO Buildup on Russian Border

Brussels, October 31 (RHC)-- In what's been described as the biggest military buildup on Russia's borders since the Cold War, the United States is promising to send troops, tanks and artillery to Poland while Britain is planning to send fighter jets to Romania and troops to Estonia next year.

The pledges were made during a recent NATO meeting in Brussels. In addition, Germany, Canada and other NATO allies have pledged to send forces to the region.

Jens Stoltenberg, NATO Secretary-General, told reporters in Brussels that several nations confirmed that they were willing to contribute to NATO's presence in the Black Sea region on land, at sea and in the air.
