

British woman to make cancer charity cycle ride around Cuba

Jan 14, -- A British woman is gearing up to cycle 400km through Cuba in memory of her mother who died of breast cancer.

Tracey Siggers, who is 51 years old, is raising money for Women vs. Cancer which supports Breast Cancer Care, Jo's Cervical Cancer Trust and Ovarian Cancer Action.

Women of all ages are taking part in the challenge in May which lasts 5 days. She said that she needs to raise at least 3000 pounds to support the three charities and need local people and businesses to support her.
