

Bipartisan Coalition in U.S. Senate Introduces Legislation To Lift Cuba Trade Restrictions

Washington, May 27 (RHC)-- A bipartisan coalition in the U.S. Senate introduced a piece of legislation Friday to lift trade restrictions against Cuba under Washington's blockade of the island.

U.S. Senators Amy Klobuchar (D-MN), Mike Enzi (R-WY), Patrick Leahy (D-VT), and Jeff Flake (R-AZ) led a bipartisan coalition of lawmakers to introduce the Freedom to Export to Cuba Act of 2017, which seeks to eliminate the legal barriers to Americans doing business in Cuba.

Senator Klobuchar said the new piece of legislation would pave the way for new economic opportunities for American businesses and farmers by boosting U.S. exports and allow Cubans greater access to American goods.

He added: "We need to turn the page on the failed policy of isolation and build on the progress we have made to open up engagement with Cuba by ending the "embargo" once and for all."
