

U.S. Secretary of State Says Washington Will Continue Cooperating with Cuba on Investigation of Alleged Attacks

Washington, September 29 (RHC-EFE)-- U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said on Friday that the United States will continue cooperating with the Cuban government on the investigation into presumed 'attacks' against U.S. diplomats in Havana.

Washington announced this morning that it is pulling out 60 percent of the embassy staff.

"Cuba has said that the investigation into these attacks will continue, and we will continue cooperating with them on that," Tillerson said in a statement.
