

U.S. court rules Donald Trump cannot end DACA

Sacramento, November 12 (RHC)-- In immigration news from the United States, a California appeals court has ruled that the Donald Trump administration cannot shut down the DACA program, upholding a federal judge's ruling earlier this year.

DACA, or Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals, affects the immigration status of some 700,000 formerly undocumented people who were taken to the U.S. as children. Trump announced plans to do away with the program last year and was immediately challenged by lawsuits from a number of states and other groups. The ruling sets the case up for a possible Supreme Court hearing in 2019.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/176331-us-court-rules-donald-trump-cannot-end-daca>

Radio Habana Cuba