

Bruno Rodriguez travels to China on official visit

Beijing, May 28 (RHC)—China's Foreign Ministry announced the arrival of Cuba's foreign minister, Bruno Rodriguez Parrilla on an official visit until May 30th.

Rodriguez arrives in Beijing after visiting Russia where he met his counterpart Sergei Lavrov. Both diplomats pledged to expand bilateral ties in the economy, investment, culture and humanitarian spheres.

According to the Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman, Lu Kang, Rodríguez 'visit responds an invitation of his host counterpart, Wang Yi.

The parties are expected to analyze the progress of bilateral relations and matters of common interest, says Prensa Latina.

The top Cuban diplomat was in China at the beginning of last November, as part of the delegation of President Miguel Diaz-Canel's first trip to China after taking office.

The Cuban head of state assured then that his stay in the Asian giant had a special significance because it focused on fostering more friendship between both governments and peoples.
