

Venezuelan president reaffirms political and diplomatic cooperation with China

Caracas, June 29 (RHC)-- Venezuelan President Nicolás Maduro said Friday that comprehensive development between China and Venezuela covers all fields.

The Venezuelan leader said: "We have political and diplomatic cooperation in the United Nations that works in a harmonious and integrated manner."

During the ceremony to celebrate the 45th anniversary of the relations of cooperation and brotherhood between China and Venezuela, Maduro also mentioned that there are many things that are being carried out in the fields of culture and sports.

"China has shown that it can be a great power without wanting to dominate other peoples of the world. China extends its arms of cooperation and brotherhood to other nations," Maduro reiterated.

In that sense, the Venezuelan president said that China will soon help improve Internet service in the country by installing an experimental 5G network. He also stressed that China has committed to provide Venezuela with all the highest-level health equipment and related technology.
