

ETECSA now has 6 million mobile customers

Havana, December 18 (RHC)-- The Cuban Telecommunications Company (ETECSA) announced that the country had reached six million mobile users as part of the process of computerization of society.

"Cuba already has 6 million mobile customers. Thanks to the effort, commitment, and love of Etecsa's workers, contributing to the computerization process," said the company's CEO, Mayra Arevich Marín.

Through her account in Social Media Twitter, the telephone company executive indicated that the user who reached the figure was Jorge Yuniesky Morales González, from the province of Sancti Spíritus.
