

Cuba seeks to expand presence of its pharmaceutical products in Japan

Tokyo, December 25 (RHC)-- Managers of the Japanese company Rainbow and Nature have expressed interest in expanding the market for Cuban pharmaceutical products in Japan.

During a meeting with Cuban Ambassador Miguel Angel Ramirez, the company's executives acknowledged Cuba's innovations in the field.

Since September, Rainbow and Nature produces locally and commercializes with great success the Cuban Policosanol.

During the encounter, the Cuban diplomat briefed his guests on the island's advances in health and biomedical research, in spite of the obstacles deriving from the U.S. blockade.
