

Airstrikes in Yemen kill 31 people including children

Sanaa, February 17 (RHC)-- In Yemen, 31 people were killed in U.S.-backed Saudi airstrikes over the weekend, including women and children. The strikes in the northern al-Jawf province came just hours after the Houthis said they had shot down a Saudi fighter jet in the same area.

On Sunday, the United Nations said the Houthis and the U.S.-backed Saudi and UAE coalition had agreed to a major prisoner swap, the first of its kind in the long-running war.

More than 100,000 have died, and far more have been displaced, since the conflict began in 2015.
