Nearly 600 sailors on board USS Theodore Roosevelt test positive for COVID-19

Washington, April 13 (RHC)-- In Guam, the U.S. Navy says nearly 600 sailors have tested positive for COVID-19 after evacuating the USS Theodore Roosevelt aircraft carrier.

Former acting Navy Secretary Thomas Modly was forced to resign last week, after he called the former captain of the nuclear-powered vessel, Brett Crozier, "too naive or too stupid" to run the ship.

The insult came after Crozier sent a memo to naval commanders pleading for help as his crew started testing positive for the coronavirus.
