Thousands protest against Israeli prime minister's coronavirus response

Tel Aviv, April 21 (RHC)-- In Israel, thousands of demonstrators staged a protest in Tel Aviv against Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, calling out the government's approach to tackling the public health crisis, which includes tracking cellphones.

Protesters, who wore masks and stood at least two meters apart from one another, urged Benny Gantz's Blue and White party not to join in a power-sharing deal with Netanyahu. Netanyahu is under criminal indictment in three corruption cases.
