

Brazil's Supreme Court asked to roll back restrictions

Brasilia, May 10 (RHC)-- Brazil's economy minister warns there could soon be product shortages in supermarkets if state quarantine measures are allowed to continue.

Paulo Guedes told an audience at the Supreme Court, including its chief justice, that Latin America's largest market is at risk of "collapse."

Guedes was joined by President Jair Bolsonaro and a group of industry leaders, who together walked to the top court to make their case for rollback of restrictions even as Brazil's coronavirus cases continue to surge.
