

Bangladeshi garment workers ordered back to factories without basic protections

Dacca, May 15 (RHC)-- In Bangladesh, garment factories have reopened despite nationwide remain-at-home orders, with workers reporting minimal protections and no enforcement of physical distancing measures.

This comes as Bangladeshi suppliers say some of the biggest retailers in the fashion industry — including The Gap, Urban Outfitters and Walmart — are using the pandemic as an excuse to force manufacturers to sell their products at a deep discount, while withholding some payments for completed orders.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/222814-bangladeshi-garment-workers-ordered-back-to-factories-without-basic-protections>

Radio Habana Cuba