

Trump names ex-pharma executive and U.S. Army general to lead vaccine campaign

Washington, May 18 (RHC)-- U.S. President Donald Trump has named Moncef Slaoui, a former executive at pGlaxoSmithKline, and Army General Gustave Perna to lead the effort to develop a coronavirus vaccine, which Trump has dubbed "Operation Warp Speed."

Some observers have raised a red flag over a possible conflict of interest as Slaoui holds $10 million in stock options at biotech company Moderna, Inc., which recently received $480 million in federal funding for coronavirus vaccine trials.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/223065-trump-names-ex-pharma-executive-and-us-army-general-to-lead-vaccine-campaign>

Radio Habana Cuba