

Dozens of U.S. healthcare workers have died of COVID-19 for lack of PPE

New York, July 2 (RHC)-- A new report finds U.S. health workers filed more than 4,100 complaints about a lack of personal protective equipment during the pandemic — even as hundreds died of COVID-19.

The report from Kaiser Health News and The Guardian found officials with the Occupational Safety and Health Administration rapidly closed many complaints without issuing citations.

Researchers found just a single instance when OSHA issued a fine: a $3,900 penalty for a Georgia nursing home that failed to report worker hospitalizations on time.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/227418-dozens-of-us-healthcare-workers-have-died-of-covid-19-for-lack-of-ppe>

Radio Habana Cuba