

U.S. coronavirus cases hit new global record

Washington, July 4 (RHC)-- The United States reported more than 55,000 new COVID-19 cases on Thursday, the largest single-day increase any country has ever reported, according to a Reuters report.

The daily U.S. tally stood at 55,274 late Thursday, topping the previous single day record of 54,771 set by Brazil on June 19th.

Just two weeks ago, the United States was reporting about 22,000 new cases a day. It has now reported more than 40,000 cases for seven straight days and broken records for new cases three days in a row, according to reports from health authorities.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/227582-us-coronavirus-cases-hit-new-global-record>

Radio Habana Cuba