La Paz, October 27 (RHC)-- In Bolivia, a court in La Paz has dismissed terrorism charges and annulled an arrest warrant against Evo Morales, arguing the former president's rights and due process had been violated.

The charges were issued following a right-wing coup last year that overthrew Evo Morales. This comes as Evo has vowed to return to Bolivia after Luis Arce of Morales's MAS party won last week's presidential election by a landslide. Evo Morales has been in exile -- first in Mexico City and then in Buenos Aires, Argentina -- for nearly one year.
