

California governor and family in quarantine after possible coronavirus exposure

Image not found or type unknown

California governor and family in quarantine after possible coronavirus exposure

Sacramento, November 24 (RHC)-- In the U.S. state of California, Governor Gavin Newsom and his family have gone into quarantine after his children were exposed to a member of the Highway Patrol who contracted the coronavirus.

Governor Newsom has also apologized after photos emerged of him flouting his own coronavirus guidelines while attending a dinner party at an exclusive French restaurant in Napa on November 6th. Newsom was photographed wearing no mask and seated in a tight cluster of people that included the chief executive of the California Medical Association and the group's top lobbyist.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/240637-california-governor-and-family-in-quarantine-after-possible-coronavirus-exposure>

Radio Habana Cuba