

Far-Right spies infiltrated Democratic groups during 2020 elections

Image not found or type unknown

Far-Right spies infiltrated Democratic groups during 2020 elections

Washington, July 1 (RHC)-- The New York Times reports that far-right operatives infiltrated Democratic-affiliated groups across western states during the 2020 election cycle to try to manipulate politics and reshape the U.S. electoral map.

The Times exposé reveals how a former British spy connected to the mercenary contractor Erik Prince recruited ex-operatives from the conservative group Project Veritas to gather dirt that could sabotage the reputations of people and groups considered threats to then-President Donald Trump.

Major funding for the effort came from Susan Gore, heiress of the Gore-Tex fortune. The operatives also targeted Wyoming Republican Governor Mark Gordon, whom Trump supporters considered far too moderate.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/262487-far-right-spies-infiltrated-democratic-groups-during-2020-elections>

Radio Habana Cuba