

Shell to pay $111 million for Nigerian oil spills in 1970s

Image not found or type unknown

Lagos, August 16 (RHC)-- In southern Nigeria, Royal Dutch Shell has agreed to pay $111 million to Ogoni communities whose land was ravaged by oil spills over a half-century ago. Shell's payment caps decades of legal wrangling in a case that was first brought in 1991 — over a pipeline that ruptured in 1970.

Environmental and social activists say that the $111 million penalty is just a small fraction of Shell's annual profits, which totaled $16.5 billion in 2019.

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/267174-shell-to-pay-111-million-for-nigerian-oil-spills-in-1970s>

Radio Habana Cuba