In the United States, COVID-19 deaths are continuing to rise rapidly, with nearly 3,000 deaths reported on Thursday

New York, September 3 (RHC)-- In the United States, COVID-19 deaths are continuing to rise rapidly, with nearly 3,000 deaths reported on Thursday. In Florida, which recorded a pandemic-high death toll in August, hospitals report more than 90% of all ICU beds are occupied, with significant shortages of oxygen.

Meanwhile, NBC News reports at least 15 million COVID-19 vaccine doses across the U.S. have gone to waste, representing about 3% of all doses delivered.
