

Protesters at site of COP26 climate summit demand real action to limit warming to 1.5°C

Image not found or type unknown

?Protesters at site of COP26 climate summit

Glasgow, October 30 (RHC)-- In Scotland, protesters gathered near the site of the upcoming COP26 summit, demanding countries take real action to limit global temperature rise to 1.5 degrees Celsius.

Dylan Hamilton, one of the organizers of the protest, said: "We have to try and remind world leaders what's happening with the crisis. The world is literally on fire, and it's only going to get worse."

Another protest organizer told reporters: “From wildfires in the U.S. to flooding across the world, we are in a full-blown climate crisis. World leaders know this. They’ve seen what’s happening. Now is the time for them to come together here in Glasgow and hammer out a deal to avert the worst of the climate catastrophe.”

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/275527-protesters-at-site-of-cop26-climate-summit-demand-real-action-to-limit-warming-to-15c>

Radio Habana Cuba