Havana, December 7 (RHC)-- Paris Saint-Germain (PSG) will host Belgian club Brugge today in the closing match of the Champions League group stage, a match without pressure in which they will seek to improve their soccer.

At the Parc des Princes in the French capital, the red-and-blue will arrive at the Parc des Princes as runners-up to qualify for the round of 16 of the UEFA competition, while the visitors will be looking for a result that will put them in the Mira de l'Europe.

PSG are coming off a defeat in the Champions League against group leaders Manchester City and two draws in Ligue 1 against Nice and Lens. The team coached by Mauricio Pochettino will be looking to improve their image and overall performance.

The Parisians will have the absences of Neymar and Julian Draxler, out of the call-up due to injury, as well as veteran Sergio Ramos, but in their case physical debt seems to be the reason.

In the Champions League, PSG are unbeaten at home, with wins 3-2 over Leipzig and 2-0 against Manchester City.
