Bethlehem, July 15 (RHC)-- As U.S. President Joe Biden visits the Middle East region, demonstrations are taking place in the occupied Palestinian territories in rejection of his visit.

During his tour of the region, which began Wednesday and runs through today, Friday, the U.S. President meets with Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas in the city of Bethlehem instead of Ramallah, the seat of the government.

Political and popular forces called upon citizens to gather in several governorates at different times and hoist the Palestinian flag during Biden's visit.

The Palestinian Media Forum organized a protest in the center of Gaza City to demand justice for journalist Shireen Abu Akleh and that the perpetrators of her murder be held accountable.

Mohammad Abu Qamar, secretary of the Forum, said at the protest in front of Al-Jalaa Tower that "the United States is responsible for what Israel is committing against media professionals. We call on the U.S. president not to erase the traces of the murder of journalist Shireen Abu Akleh."

The secretary also demanded that international human rights institutions oust Israel from global media and forums for the murder of the Palestinian-American journalist.

Palestinian authorities claim that the U.S. president's visit aims to serve the Israeli occupation and its interests in the region, seeking to take away the wealth of Arab countries and peoples.
