

Cuba Attends Post-Forum Dialogue of Pacific Islands Forum

Sydney, August 1 (RHC) -- Cuba has made a splash at the Pacific Islands Forum in Palau on Friday by joining in the post- forum dialogue for the first time.

Cuban Ambassador Plenipotentiary in the region, Maria del Carmen Herrera Caseiro, said her nation shared common values on the themes of the conference, such as the oceans and climate change, according to a report by Xinhua news agency.

Cuba has increased its involvement in the region over the past 10 years through a range of health sector programs.

Herrera Caseiro said: "Beginning in 2005, we sent Cuban doctors to different Pacific Island countries upon their request. We also started granting scholarships to Pacific island countries to study medicine in Cuba, as a way to develop their human resources."

Cuba currently supplies medical staff to Pacific nations, while nearly 200 Pacific Island students study medicine and primary health care in Havana.

Palau President Tommy Remengesau Jr. said it was important for Pacific Island nations to have a diverse range of partnerships at international levels. He said: "We don't need politics, we need partners -- people who are conscious of what our future is and wish to partner with us in achieving that right way forward." And he added: "With Cuba, they're teaching our sons and daughters in the medical profession, providing scholarships for school."
