

Former U.S. police officer gets three years in George Floyd killing

Image not found or type unknown

Thomas Lane pleaded guilty to a state charge of aiding and abetting second-degree manslaughter in the killing of George Floyd [File: Hennepin County Sheriff's Office via AP Photo]

Minneapolis, September 22 (RHC)-- The former Minneapolis police officer who pinned George Floyd's legs to the pavement while fellow officer Derek Chauvin choked him to death was sentenced to three years in prison by a Minnesota court on Wednesday.

Judge Peter Cahill accepted a guilty plea agreement for Thomas Lane, saying he would sentence Lane below the guidelines because he accepted responsibility. “I think it was a very wise decision for you to accept responsibility and move on with your life,” Cahill said, while acknowledging that the Floyd family has not been able to move on with theirs.

Lane, a former police officer in Minneapolis, Minnesota, is already serving a 2.5-year federal sentence for violating Floyd’s civil rights. When it came to the state’s case, prosecutors and Lane’s lawyers had agreed to a recommended sentence of three years — which is below the sentencing guidelines — and prosecutors agreed to allow him to serve that penalty at the same time as his federal sentence, and in a federal prison.

Floyd died in May 2020 after officer Derek Chauvin pinned him to the ground with a knee on the 46-year-old’s neck as Floyd repeatedly said he could not breathe. Lane held down Floyd’s legs during the fatal arrest, while two other officers – J Alexander Kueng and Tou Thao – knelt on Floyd’s back and kept bystanders from intervening, respectively, during the 9.5-minute restraint.

Under Minnesota rules, it is presumed Lane would serve two years of his state sentence in prison, and the rest on supervised release, commonly known as parole. The killing, captured on widely viewed bystander video, set off protests in Minneapolis and around the globe as part of a reckoning over racial injustice.

Wednesday’s sentencing hearing was held remotely. Lane appeared via video from the Federal Correctional Institution Englewood, the low-security federal prison camp in Littleton, Colorado. He made no statement to the court prior to sentencing. But after the hearing was adjourned, Lane complained to his lawyer that the judge had said he would have to register as a predatory offender “if required.”

“I gotta register as a predatory offender? What the [expletive] is that?” Lane said. And he added, “That’s what Chauvin has to do. If I have a minimal role, why the [expletive] do I have to do that?” Gray reportedly told him he would look into it.

Chauvin was convicted of murder and manslaughter and was given a 22.5-year state sentence in 2021. He also pleaded guilty to a federal count of violating Floyd’s civil rights, and his state and federal sentences are being served at the same time.

Kueng and Thao were also convicted on federal civil rights charges and were sentenced to three and 3.5 years, respectively. They have not yet reported to federal prison, and are scheduled to go to trial on state charges of aiding and abetting both murder and manslaughter in October.

When Lane pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting second-degree manslaughter earlier this year, he admitted that he intentionally helped restrain Floyd in a way that created an unreasonable risk and caused his death.

As part of the plea agreement, a more serious count of aiding and abetting second-degree unintentional murder was dismissed. In his plea agreement, Lane admitted that he knew from his training that restraining Floyd in that way created a serious risk of death, and that he heard Floyd say he could not breathe, knew Floyd fell silent, had no pulse and appeared to have lost consciousness.

The plea agreement said Lane knew Floyd should have been rolled onto his side — and evidence showed he asked twice if that should be done — but he continued to assist in the restraint despite the risk. Lane agreed the restraint was “unreasonable under the circumstances and constituted an unlawful use of force.”

<https://www.radiohc.cu/index.php/en/noticias/internacionales/299948-former-us-police-officer-gets-three-years-in-george-floyd-killing>

Radio Habana Cuba