According to the website www.norceca.net, the northern bronze medalists were better in attack, 53 points to 47, blocking (16-8) and own errors (17-18), but were behind in service (5-7).

The largest of the Antilles finished with two victories, one in the group phase against Costa Rica -in the B bracket- and another in the quarterfinals against Puerto Rico, and four setbacks, two in the B bracket (United States and Dominican Republic), another in the semifinal (United States) and the one in the bronze match (Canada).

The Dominican Republic won the crown with a 3-2 (12-25, 25-21, 19-25, 25-19 and 15-13) victory over the previously undefeated United States in the final.

In the B section, the U.S. leaders of that phase defeated the Quintana Roo women 3-0 (25-22, 25-22 and 25-16).

www.norceca.net highlights that most of the seven teams that participated in the Canadian tournament did so with their main players in search of points for the ranking of the geographical area, a list for which Cuba has already secured its ticket to the Pan American Games of Santiago de Chile 2023.

It also coincided that the United States and Canada announced that they will not participate in the Chilean multi-sport event.
