Tesla recalls two million vehicles over flaws in autopilot software

New York, December 15 (RHC)-- Tesla has recalled software from nearly all of its two million vehicles on U.S. roads after regulators found the electric car manufacturer failed to ensure that drivers remain attentive while using Autopilot, a system that can drive autonomously.

This follows a series of accidents involving self-driving Teslas — some of them fatal.

Meanwhile, in Sweden, garbage has begun piling up at Tesla's workshops after a major Transport Workers' Union said it would stop collecting waste in support of Swedish mechanics who've been on strike since October to protest the anti-union policies of Tesla and its billionaire CEO, Elon Musk.
