New York, January 31 (RHC)-- New satellite imagery shows at least 144,000 buildings in Gaza have been damaged or destroyed since the Israeli bombardment began nearly four months ago — that's more than half of all buildings in the Gaza Strip, including mosques, schools, universities and cultural sites.

Corey Scher of the City University of New York told the BBC: "We've done work over Ukraine, we've also looked at Aleppo and other cities, but the extent and the pace of damage is remarkable. I've never seen this much damage appear so quickly."
